the independent attitude among the holders when many observers thought a feartion probable.

Although the two weeks of excellent weather had enabled progress to be made in picking as well as bettering grade to some extent, conditions changed for the worse. Rains were quite liberal in many sections, damaging the quality and interrupting saving what was left. Cold waves were promised, but falled to materialize to any great extent, although in part of the western belt some snow was had. Some error salimates were made, the average of which seems to indicate that expectations are crystallizing around 10.500 600, exclusive of inters. The fact that the government will issue its figures on Dec. Il assures the coming of many more guesses in the mannime, with another ginning report as well.

The size of the crop may become a more potent influence inter, but as yet discussion seems to be about other things. The scarcity of good grades in fully appreciated, but whether altogether so can not be told. Some constend that prices have gone to a level that will mean curtainment of consumption, especially while the world seems to be a from on the mend—while financial conditions still—are nebulous and will be for an indefinite period. The position of this country because of the rejection of the peace treaty and uncertainty as to its fate at the hands of congress soon to reassemble means prolongation of the state of uncertainty because of the rejection of the peace treaty and uncertainty as to its fate at the hands of congress soon to reassemble means prolongation of the state of uncertainty because of the rejection of the state of uncertainty because of opinion as to whether this has not already been fully taken into account or whether the fresh emphasis being put on it is not part of the effort of the spinners to hammer values so they may be able to buy the remaining part of their raw material needs at much lower levels, seeing they have provided for part of them.

Absence of a big short interest was feit, although much of the buying of the period came from shorts, some of whom were in the near positions. The small amount of cotton available for protecting short sales and the big disparity between rotures and spots naturally caused covering for the first day for Desember notices brought not one. There seems to be a natural corner. There seems to be a natural corner, which, it is predicted, will extend to the other months as they approach_ma-when the outlook seemed had was that traders thought the far-reaching effects would be such as to necessitate drastic steps by the government which would mean an early termination of the tier.

An important factor for higher prices in the face of other things was the sharp rise in silver metal and its effect on the purchasing power of a ron-siderable part of the world. Prices rose to imprecedented levels, with the result that Litverpool became a more active buyer at home and in this country, although to this side it was chiefly through the absorption of contracts as hedges against future requirements of the actual. Manchester trade advices were silmulated and it perhaps helped

Saturday afternoon, Nov. 28.
Although advices this morning confirmed the report that oberatives at Fail River were going on a strike Monday for more wages and there was still an absence of much that was encouraging in the coad situation, steadiness prevailed during the short session and changes as a rule were to the good. Tope at the finish in New York was firth and the list from 50 to 12 points higher, while in New Orleans tone was called steady and the list from 25 up to 18 down.

ook was for lair and colors, out re-orts said that the unpicked portion of he crop had been further damages ford pricking delayed, again. The puly ecompense was that good season was seing put in the ground for next year's crop in those sections where fall and whiter rains are important. Little change was shown at the openwhiter rains are important.

Little change was shown at the opening, and in New York a little reaction followed during the first few minutes, perhaps due to liquidation because of the industrial news. However, good support was given by spot interests and offerings were scarce, for spets were well maintained. The best prices for the session were around the last ones, and the spot positions again reflected the disposition of shorts to cover.

The weekly statistics made a little better showing than some expected, but cut small figure. Spots were rather quiet as a rule and sales moderate.
